Where Are They Now? - February 2015

Cathrine White, graduate student studying literature

White was featured in the August 2012 newsletter during her first semester back to college after an eight-year absence. “Since returning to SIU after time away, I have completed a bachelor’s degree in English and am currently working on my Master of Arts degree in Literature,” she said. “If someone would have asked me five years ago what I would be doing, I would have never imagined telling them, ‘Working on a bachelor’s degree,’ or ‘Completing my master’s degree.’ I have had a lot of support from faculty and staff, and the NTSS office as well.” White graduates this May and is looking forward to the opportunities to come. “I would have never pictured myself as a graduate student five years ago, and I’m so glad that I took time in the summer of 2012 to come talk with Admissions and Non-Traditional Student Services,” she said. “I probably wouldn’t be where I am today without the tools and help that were given that fall as I began a new chapter in life.”
