

Kim Kennedy

Where Are They Now? - February 2015

---

Kim Kennedy, undergraduate student studying information systems technology

Kennedy was featured in the October 2012 newsletter and expects to graduate this coming fall semester. Looking back on her first days at SIU, she described her experience as a “deer in headlights,” but she quickly learned her way around campus and never looked back. “My intentions are to do an internship on campus in the fall,” she said back then. Kennedy hopes to give back by working on campus here at SIU and continuing her education. “Yes, you heard me correctly, I would like to get a MPA and then perhaps become an adviser for the IST college,” she said. “Who knows? I love to learn and want to make a difference.”

In addition to her own successes, Kennedy recently learned that her oldest granddaughter, Londyn, was just accepted to SIU! She not only has settled in to campus but has also helped another nontraditional student with a successful transition by referring him to the NTSS office during his first week of class this spring. Thanks for paying it forward, Kim!

---

Kim Kennedy is an undergraduate student studying information systems technology.